THE EUROPEAN ARTISTIC CRAFTS DAYS 2016

10TH EDITION OF THE EUROPEAN ARTISTIC CRAFTS DAYS IN FRANCE : « LET'S SHAPE THE FUTURE », THE MANIFESTO FOR A CULTURE IN MOTION

THE RENEWAL OF CRAFTS

In only ten editions, the European Artistic Crafts Days (EACD/JEMA) became the most important event dedicated to this sector around the world. Orchestrated by the National Institute of the Arts and Crafts (INMA), they invite the young audience and the general public to discover during a long weekend crafts in all their diversity.

The European Artistic Crafts Days (EACD) look promising. In France, this cultural, economic and touristic event gathers 5 000 workshops opened to the public or operating outdoors and 600 exhibitions.

« CRAFTS, TOMORROW'S GESTURES », THE MANIFESTO FOR A CULTURE IN MOTION

More than 200 artistic professions constitute the world of artistic crafts, valuable treasure of our intangible cultural heritage and major driving force of the creative economy, source of social and professional emancipation.

The new edition of the European Artistic Crafts Days indeed aims to convey a strong message and to show how, beyond their technical achievements, crafts contribute to a genuine social and collective intelligence project. The creative energy of their know-how sustains many sectors of the real and local economy. The industry, architecture, decoration and design have integrated perfectly their added value. Partnerships have multiplied with workshops acting as laboratories of innovation and sources of inspiration. A new generation is emerging, building on both today's achievements and resources. Indeed, tomorrow's actions are also those of artisans who break free from their isolation to work together and create, within their territory, the conditions towards a conscious and committed art of living together. The future is in our hands, let's build it with crafts.

MAJOR EXHIBITIONS AT THE HEART OF THE PROGRAM

Crafts fully contribute to the French cultural exception. They form a solid foundation on which the various fields of design can rely. On the EACD's occasion, several French museums and cultural sites incorporate into their program national outstanding exhibitions that contribute to the diversity of the 600 events. These exhibitions extend over a period of time the opportunity for the public to understand the impact of crafts on contemporary art, with the model of the two events « l'Empreinte du Geste » at the Musée des Arts Décoratifs and « Double Je, Artisans and Artists » at the Palais de Tokyo in Paris.

THREE DAYS FOR ENCOURAGING YOUNG TALENTS' INTEREST

Since their launch, the objective of the European Artistic Crafts Days has been to stimulate the interest of young people towards fostering knowledge, transmission and recognition. This year again, a special attention is given to the program dedicated to the young audience in order to connect the youngest with matter and creativity, educate with beauty and sustainable consumption policies and even generate vocations.

In each participating region, some exhibitions, educational workshops, animation and guided tours with recreational and educational purposes are organized to familiarize the children with the material, stimulate their interest and have them discover vocations which associate enthusiasm and fulfillment.

AN EXPANDING EVENT IN FRANCE AND INTERNATIONALLY

First international event dedicated to crafts, the European Artistic Crafts Days continue their expansion in France and in Europe. French overseas territories are increasingly represented with, this year again, the participation of La Guadeloupe, La Martinique and La Réunion.

Five new countries join this event in 2016, bringing to nineteen the number of countries and European regions participating in this event: Estonia, Greece, Poland, Netherlands and Great Britain. In some countries, the European Artistic Crafts Days (EACD) expand to new regions : the Neuchâtel district in Switzerland, the whole Wallon region in Belgium. Furthermore, a cross-border outstanding cooperation project is being implemented between Lorraine and Luxembourg. Finally, Canada is the invited nation this year : eleven artisans from Québec and Ontario, ambassadors of the movement « Citizens of Crafts », are invited to exhibit and display in the INMA gallery, at the Viaduc des Arts, in Paris.

AN ORIGINAL TOURISTIC APPROACH

In the first days of spring, the European Artistic Crafts Days are an invitation to rediscover our countries under an original angle. Throughout meetings with those who keep our know-how alive and growing, the EACD allow us to visit the regions, the towns and the villages involved in the creativity that, during three days, live at the rhythm of the event.

AN ECONOMIC SECTOR UNDER THE SPOTLIGHTS

In France, the law from the 18th of June 2014 related to crafts, trade and micro-enterprises recognized the crafts as a fully- fledged economic sector. With 38 000 businesses representing 59 000 jobs generating a revenue in the amount of 8 billion euros, 727 millions of which come from export, the crafts sector deals with a variety of artistic professions that the European Artistic Crafts Days enhance in a unique way.

Thus, the European Artistic Crafts Days contribute to the creation of new vocations through sectors generating jobs at the local level and provide meaningful economic benefits for the participating workshops. In 2015, one visitor out of five purchased a craft creation during the EACD and 48% of attending professionals have made sales during those three days.

« LET'S SHAPE THE FUTURE », THEME OF THE 2016 EDITION

IN 2016, THE EUROPEAN ARTISTIC CRAFTS DAYS WILL WELCOME ASSERTION OF SHARED VALUES, DISCUSSION WITH ONE UNITED VOICE AND IMAGINATION OF A FUTURE TOGETHER.

CRAFTS, TOMORROW'S GESTURES

Valuable elements of both the culture and the French and European economies, the Arts and Crafts give us the opportunity to embellish and give meaning to our living environments and emancipate socially, individually and collectively. Thus, they give us an universal and unified message focused around the human being and the « living together » : a way of life established for the long term, environmentally friendly and conscious of everyone's quality of life.

The National Institute of Arts and Crafts (INMA) wanted to gather these values within a theme-manifesto, an incentive for sharing and dialoguing. Professionals, young people, general public, consumers, citizens : all can be actors of this culture in motion, featured during these 10th European Artistic Crafts Days.

A MANIFESTO FOR A CULTURE IN MOTION

THE HUMAN COMPONENT AT THE HEART OF THE ARTS AND CRAFTS

In harmony with the new aspirations resulting from society's quest for meaning, the arts and crafts transmit the values of humanity, fraternity, and social interaction.

#Cultivating our humanity

UNIQUENESS THAT IS INHERENTLY MEANINGFUL

Using skilled gestures that connect hand and mind, arts and crafts artisans are capable of transforming materials and creating long-lasting objects that have great cultural value and are imbued with all the discernment and uniqueness of those who fashion them.

#Highlighting our uniqueness

ESTABLISHING ROOTS FOR THE FUTURE

The identity of the arts and crafts trades is a hybrid one: it has been forged by age-old skills and the development of know-how transmitted down through many generations. Our European heritage lies at the meeting point between tradition and innovation.

#(Re)inventing our heritage

A CONSCIOUS AND COMMITTED DESIRE TO PROMOTE A CERTAIN ART DE VIVRE

The arts and crafts embody an approach to life that focuses on beauty, pleasure, uniqueness, utility, and quality, creating objects that can be worn, placed in one's home, or displayed in the public domain; from the most accessible to the most exceptional of works, they are created uniquely for us.

#Enhancing our daily lives

A CULTURE OF OPENNESS

In line with contemporary social and economic issues, the arts and crafts promote a culture of work and collaborative and cross-disciplinary entrepreneurship, which, in turn, generates new local and global markets.

#Forging new links

A HARMONIOUS AND JUST ECONOMIC SYSTEM

The arts and crafts are anchored in a real, local economy, in which artisans take the time to craft quality objects and consumers are encouraged to adopt a different approach to their buying habits.

THE EUROPEAN DIMENSION OF THE EUROPEAN ARTISTIC CRAFTS DAYS

A MOVEMENT ACROSS THE BORDERS: REINVENTING THE TRADITION

The European Artistic Crafts Days are now part of the major European cultural events. Each year, the EACD contribute to the diversity and the dynamism of crafts in an increased number of countries sharing similar challenges in the transmission of knowledge, training or innovation.

The European Artistic Crafts Days are also the opportunity to highlight the crucial role of crafts within Europe's development and economic growth : the crafts belong to the creative and cultural sectors which « represent up to 4,5% of the GDP and 8,5 billions of employments within the European Union »*. In 2016, 19 countries will be able to enjoy the European Artistic Crafts Days : Germany, Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Spain, Estonia, France, Greece, Hungary, Italy, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Poland, Portugal, Romania, the United Kingdom and Switzerland.

The European Artistic Crafts Days expand considerably every year. Consequently, the 2016 edition is characterized by the participation of five new European partners : Estonia, Greece, the Netherlands, Poland and the United Kingdom. Likewise, in the countries already involved during the previous years, the European Artistic Crafts Days expand to new regions : in Belgium, all of Wallonia join this event owing to the participation of four new provinces (Brabant-Wallon, Hainaut, Luxembourg, Namur), in Switzerland, the district of Neuchâtel will participate for the first time and will then join those of Jura, Vaud and Geneva.

Creative ideas further enhance the European cooperation to promote crafts : this year, Lorraine Region (France) and Luxembourg agreed on a common program and a joint communication while the craftsmen designers from Berlin and Paris will gather together for an unique exhibit at the Kunstgewerbemuseum in Berlin.
